How reading high impact journals can help you to publish in high impact journals

- "Reading, you start to emulate the best writing, and you become a better writer."
- "Read top-tier journals wherever you think the best is in the field for you. Notice how they write, how it is constructed, and try to emulate that."
- "Study key journals in general medicine, like JACC, Lancet, JAMA, NEJM, because they exquisitely focus on high-quality tables and figures."
- "Study your target journal, see how tables and figures are put together in that journal, and try to emulate those."
- "If you submit to journal X, consider using references from journal X if appropriate, and use the most up-to-date references available."

MUST KNOW TIPS FOR PUBLISHING IN JACC JOURNALS. PRESENTER: DR. DAVID J. MOLITERNO, IS THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF OF JACC: CARDIOVASCULAR INTERVENTIONS. JACK M. GILL CHAIR AND PROFESSOR OF THE DEPARTMENT OF INTERNAL MEDICINE AT THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY
